

The Management of the State Finances.

The recumbent witness, Mr. Cabell, the cashier of the Merchants' Bank at Charleston, has concluded to answer the questions that were put to him a few days ago by the investigating committee touching the arrangement existing between the bank and the financial officers of the State as to the rate of interest actually paid on the public deposits. The disclosures of Mr. Cabell to the committee have not yet been made public, and will not be until the committee shall report, but we may be sure that he would not have gone to jail had he not known that his answer would criminate not only himself but those whose business it was to see that the State suffered no detriment at their hands. We therefore assume as true the suspicious heretofore fully expressed by this journal touching the management of the public finances by the State Treasurer. He has tried hard heretofore to stave off investigation, and up to this time he has succeeded, but the indications now are that he will be smoked out at this session of the Legislature. We showed last year that out of $118,000 deposited in the Charleston banks, $70,000 drew only 2 1/2 per cent interest and $48,000 drew only 3 per cent. We should also note only the First National Bank of Wheeling was willing to pay 4 per cent, yet it only received the pitiful deposit of $253 36, while the Kanawha Valley Bank, at Charleston, had $44,972 72, and the First National Bank of the same place, had $25,111 15, at 2 1/2 per cent interest.

Every place outside of Charleston paid higher rates than these two banks, except one bank at Point Pleasant, and yet no other banks in the State had such heavy deposits as those at Charleston. This, too, notwithstanding the fact that the First district of the State is pre-eminently the tax-paying district of the Commonwealth.

The following is the table as we published it last year, showing the amount of deposits in each bank of the State, and the amount of interest paid by each:

Name of Bank.	Amount.	Rate of Interest.
Wellsburg National Bank	$6,600 00	3 per cent.
Jefferson Savings Bank	15,113 92	3
Charleston Bank	10,265 15	3
Merchants' Bank of Charleston	18,594 01	3
2d National Bank, Charleston	3,062 49	3
1st National Bank, Parkersburg	23,200 15	3
1st National Bank, Fairmont	22,263 20	3
Bank of Charleston	10,947 71	3
Wheeling	3,621 61	3
1st National Bank, Wheeling	25,111 15	2 1/2
Kanawha Valley Bank, Charleston	44,972 72	2 1/2
1st National Bank, Charleston	25,111 15	2 1/2
Merchants' National Bank of	4,497 72	2 1/2
Point Pleasant	2,747 23	2 1/2
1st National Bank, Parkersburg	7,112 23	2 1/2
Huffman & Co., Morgantown	2,213 25	2 1/2
Bank of Charleston	23,647 26	2 1/2

When we published the above table last year, we accompanied it with the following remarks, which we now reproduce as still applicable to the investigations of the present smoking out committee:

Now what we desire to ask the Legislature to investigate is as to the inducements that have controlled the distribution of the funds of the State after the fashion above set forth. To come down to particulars, let that honorable body appoint a thorough-going committee that will ascertain and report how it comes that the three banks at Charleston get over $118,000, of which $70,000 draws only 2 1/2 per cent interest, and $48,000 only 3 per cent, while Wheeling, where no bank pays less than 3 per cent, only gets about $15,000 all told, and the First National, that pays 4 per cent interest, only gets $253 36.

When this somewhat peculiar-looking circumstance is explained, the committee should also inquire into and report how it comes that Camden's bank at Parkersburg gets over $21,000 of the State's money at 3 per cent, while the Second National, General Jackson's bank, gets but $8,000 at 3 per cent.

By Telegraph.

ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT.
TO THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER.
Night Dispatches.
CHARLESTON.
Three Ballots in Joint Session.
MCGINNIS AHEAD.
FOUR BALLOTS IN CAUCUS.
No Nomination Until the Capital Question is Settled.
CHARLESTON EXPECTS A VETO.

The House and Senate met in joint session at 10 o'clock to-day for the third ballot on the bill for the reorganization of the State. The bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The Senate then met for the fourth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The House then met for the fifth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The bill is now in the hands of the Governor, who is expected to veto it.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

By Telegraph.

ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT.
TO THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER.
Night Dispatches.
CHARLESTON.
Three Ballots in Joint Session.
MCGINNIS AHEAD.
FOUR BALLOTS IN CAUCUS.
No Nomination Until the Capital Question is Settled.
CHARLESTON EXPECTS A VETO.

The House and Senate met in joint session at 10 o'clock to-day for the third ballot on the bill for the reorganization of the State. The bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The Senate then met for the fourth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The House then met for the fifth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The bill is now in the hands of the Governor, who is expected to veto it.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

By Telegraph.

ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT.
TO THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER.
Night Dispatches.
CHARLESTON.
Three Ballots in Joint Session.
MCGINNIS AHEAD.
FOUR BALLOTS IN CAUCUS.
No Nomination Until the Capital Question is Settled.
CHARLESTON EXPECTS A VETO.

The House and Senate met in joint session at 10 o'clock to-day for the third ballot on the bill for the reorganization of the State. The bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The Senate then met for the fourth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The House then met for the fifth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The bill is now in the hands of the Governor, who is expected to veto it.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

By Telegraph.

ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT.
TO THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER.
Night Dispatches.
CHARLESTON.
Three Ballots in Joint Session.
MCGINNIS AHEAD.
FOUR BALLOTS IN CAUCUS.
No Nomination Until the Capital Question is Settled.
CHARLESTON EXPECTS A VETO.

The House and Senate met in joint session at 10 o'clock to-day for the third ballot on the bill for the reorganization of the State. The bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The Senate then met for the fourth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The House then met for the fifth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The bill is now in the hands of the Governor, who is expected to veto it.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

By Telegraph.

ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT.
TO THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER.
Night Dispatches.
CHARLESTON.
Three Ballots in Joint Session.
MCGINNIS AHEAD.
FOUR BALLOTS IN CAUCUS.
No Nomination Until the Capital Question is Settled.
CHARLESTON EXPECTS A VETO.

The House and Senate met in joint session at 10 o'clock to-day for the third ballot on the bill for the reorganization of the State. The bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The Senate then met for the fourth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The House then met for the fifth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The bill is now in the hands of the Governor, who is expected to veto it.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

By Telegraph.

ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT.
TO THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER.
Night Dispatches.
CHARLESTON.
Three Ballots in Joint Session.
MCGINNIS AHEAD.
FOUR BALLOTS IN CAUCUS.
No Nomination Until the Capital Question is Settled.
CHARLESTON EXPECTS A VETO.

The House and Senate met in joint session at 10 o'clock to-day for the third ballot on the bill for the reorganization of the State. The bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The Senate then met for the fourth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The House then met for the fifth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The bill is now in the hands of the Governor, who is expected to veto it.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

By Telegraph.

ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT.
TO THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER.
Night Dispatches.
CHARLESTON.
Three Ballots in Joint Session.
MCGINNIS AHEAD.
FOUR BALLOTS IN CAUCUS.
No Nomination Until the Capital Question is Settled.
CHARLESTON EXPECTS A VETO.

The House and Senate met in joint session at 10 o'clock to-day for the third ballot on the bill for the reorganization of the State. The bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The Senate then met for the fourth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The House then met for the fifth ballot, and the bill was passed by a vote of 17 to 12. The bill is now in the hands of the Governor, who is expected to veto it.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.

The bill for the reorganization of the State is a measure of great importance. It provides for the reorganization of the State into three districts, and for the election of a new Governor and Legislature. The bill is expected to be vetoed by the Governor, who is a strong supporter of the present system.